Feedback

Victor, your portfolio does an excellent job of combining your personal story, professional experience, and spiritual growth. I particularly liked how you reflected on ethics and leadership while demonstrating a commitment to helping others through technology.

Insights

This Portfolio has been very good to show your journey since you were young to the current position of teaching. Therefore, the way your progression shows is very impressive. I liked how you asked for help to create the email at that cybercafe and now you have skills to teach others that and much more.

I like how the website allows you to use a communication method to send a message to you directly for any person that may want to hire you.

Ideas to improve the portfolio

An improvement idea I can suggest is the use of the IT project or, in this case, the service-learning project, which does not provide much information about what happened or the decisions you made to provoke the 90% reduction in tech anxiety. If you provide that information, it will make the project much more engaging. Therefore, it will allow us to understand your skills.

If you can add an introduction about the portfolio itself, it will set expectations about what the portfolio is about and what you will offer to the potential audience.

Question

How can you leverage this talent of teaching?
